NEW METHODIST CHURCH DEDICATED

There Was a Good Attendance at All the Services.

The handsome Methodist church at Odessa was dedicated on Sunday morning. Rev. Dr. Carman, superintendent of the Methodist church, officiating. Though the weather was cold the attendance at the morning service was excellent, the church being filled. There was general adoration of the building, both internally and externally. Napanee, Kingston, Belleville, and surrounding villages were well represented in the congregation. The choir of twenty picked vocalists, under the able management of Henry J. Smith, leader, fully sustained their reputation and certainly filled their part well and nobly, with sweet, inspiring hymns and anthems. The new pipe organ, well handled by Mrs. Robert Cairns, an expert, gave entire satisfaction.

Dr. Carman's sermon in the evening from Rev. xxi., 2, was marked by clearness of thought and forcefulness of expression, and was attentively listened to by a very large and appreciative audience, fully as many being in attendance as in the morning.

Odessa Methodists are certainly to be congratulated on the success of their dedicatory services, also on their beautiful church. All honor and credit is due Rev. Mr. Bell, pastor, for his untiring efforts in having this new edifice built, and successfully carrying it out to completion.

On next Sunday (10th), Rev. Mr. Halpenny, secretary of the Provincial Sunday School Association, will take charge of the services and preach both morning and evening, when the new Sunday School rooms will be dedicated.

On Sunday, March 17th, Rev. W. Kettlewell, representing the Dominion Alliance, will occupy the pulpit both morning and evening.

On Monday evening, March 4th, was the largest gathering ever assembled at a tea meeting held in Odessa. The new church was well filled and the ladies who had charge of the bountiful delicacies certainly excelled and everybody expressed themselves as being more than delighted with the tea.

Those in the body of the church were entertained by Mrs. J. W. Metzler, of Napanee, Mr. and Mrs. Holton, of Belleville, Miss Stoker and others while tea was being served. After tea Mr. W. T. Gibbard, of Napanee, was asked to take the chair, which he very ably filled, congratulating the members of Odessa on the fine new edifice which was very much in keeping with modern times. The programme opened with a selection from the choir after which Mr. Arthur Craig, of Kingston, rendered a solo, which met with the hearty encore of everybody present, as also did his Selections were also rendered by Miss Arnolds, of Kingston, and Mr. Leonard, of Odessa. The chairman introduced Rev. W. G. Clark, President B. of Q. conference, of Belleville, who spoke of the new church as not only a credit to Odessa, but also to the Methodist conference, and took up the matter of finance which showed that the church costing around $15,000 only needed $2,800 to clear up all indebtedness. He thought the people of Odessa had done remarkable and he would be more than pleased to see the new church free from debt and asked the people to add to the already liberal subscriptions, sufficient to set the church "on dry ground" as Mr. Clark expressed it. Nearly everybody responded and the amount was raised and the new church when subscriptions are paid will be free from debt.

Bancroft Times: One day last fall, W. N. Simmons placed an ugly, green worm in a box and put it up on a shelf in his shop to await developments. It was not long until the captive wrapped himself in a blanket and went to sleep. Nothing more was seen of him until last Thursday when he emerged from the cocoon, transformed into a most beautiful butterfly, with wings having a spread of nearly five inches. Its body is almost as large as that of the original worm, yet the hole in the cocoon, through which it made its exit is not larger than an ordinary lead pencil.

It is reported in Toronto that the next York Loan dividend, which will be a final dividend, will probably not be paid for several years to come, according to Mr. C. E. Herrington, the liquidator. The first, a 25 per cent dividend, was payable in November, 1909, and the second, also 25 per cent., in December, 1911. "Before another dividend can be paid $250,000 must be on hand," Mr. Herrington said, "and, although the whole of the property owned by the company, valued at about $2,000,000, has been sold, with the exception of about $50,000 worth, a great deal of the purchase money has not yet been paid, and until it is all paid there can be no further dividend."

Linked by Fate

BY CHARLES GARVICE

Author of "The Verdict of the Heart," "A Heritage of Hate," "Nell of Shorne Mills," "Paid For," "A Modern Juliet," Etc.

He turned to the empty box which served as a table and turned out the contents of his pocket upon it.

"Look at those!" he exclaimed in a tone of suppressed excitement. "Look at them! Do you know what they are? Wait! Shut the door!"

Nina closed the door and came back to the group; but though the casual observer would have said that she was looking at the apparently extremely commonplace stones on the table, she was really looking, sideways, at Mannering.

"See what they are!" said the Doctor, in a thick, tremulous whisper. "Take up one of them; examine it!"

Mannering mechanically took up one of the stones. He was thinking of the men, wondering how long they would remain quiescent, amenable.

"Well?" demanded the Doctor, impatiently. His face was flushed with excitement as well as fever, and the sweat stood in big drops on his wrinkled forehead.

Mannering raised his brows deprecatingly.

"They look like ordinary stones, Doctor," he said.

Doctor Vernon uttered a cry of impatient contempt.

"Tut, man, where were you educated?" he retorted, impatiently. "They are gold quartz. Gold, gold, I tell you! Hush!" He glanced anxiously towards the door. "It's gold. We are rich—beyond the dreams of avarice!"

He uttered the dear old hackneyed phrase hoarsely, unctuously.

"I found them in the valley between the ridge of hills, south by southwest. There is gold there, I tell you, gold in immense quantities! Gold!"

His bloodshot eyes peered from one to the other with feverish excitement, and his hanging under lip trembled as if he had been struck by palsy.

Fleming and Mannering looked at each other significantly. The glance said, "He is mad!"

"In immense quantities! It lies, most of it, on the surface, in what the miners call 'placers.' It is quite easy to get. It is, I verily believe, an island of gold. And it is ours, ours! Nina, Mannering, Fleming, we are rich, millionaires, multi-millionaires, as the phrase goes. It is incorrect, but no matter, the gold is there! How hot it is!" He drew his trembling hand across his wet brow and sank, almost collapsed, on to the table.

Nina went to him and laid a soothing hand on his shoulder.

"You are tired, father; you must rest, be quiet—"

"Rest! Nonsense! You—you talk like a child! You don't understand, Nina! I tell you it is gold! I cannot have made a mistake. We have been cast ashore on an Eldorado! Mr. Mannering, Fleming, you will

"Mannering," he said, in the tone of one who brings bad news, "they—they have gone!"

"Gone? Who?" asked Mannering, dully.

"The men—all of them. They have taken the boat and left us."

Mannering nodded grimly.

"It is like them. The boat gone! There goes our only hope of escape. I, too, have had bad news. Doctor Vernon is dead. Go up to the hut, Fleming. She wants you."

Fleming caught his breath, then, without a word, went up the beach.

Mannering stood on the edge of the sand and looked out seaward. With the boat had gone their last chance, hope, of escaping. He and Fleming and Nina were now left sole inhabitants of this lonely island. He stared out to sea, and the sea mocked him with its splendour and majesty. It seemed to him to say, "I am Master; you are my Slave. I laugh at you and all your efforts. I am supreme. My will is law. I have cast you here to live in a living death. There is no escape!"

How long he remained staring at the waves as they lapped on the sand he never knew. He was recalled to life and its exigencies by Fleming, who, crawling up weakly, said:

"Is there a spade, Mannering?"

Mannering made a mute assent, found the spade, and the two men dug the grave. They went up to the hut and carried the dead man down.

Nina followed them, her head bowed almost to her bosom; and she stood motionless, tearless, while Fleming recited the Burial Service in gasps.

Then, still with bent head, she went back to the hut; a girl, an orphan, with these two men as sole companions.

Fleming, as a clergyman, had offered the usual condolences, and she had accepted them meekly, with the docile humility of her sex. It was evening before he left her and met Mannering at the entrance of their hut.

Fleming was wan and pale, and his cough was like a war cry.

"How is she?" asked Mannering.

Fleming made a gesture of despair. "Who should say? Very bad. Poor girl! oh, poor girl! It's terrible, terrible! And—and Mannering, I've been thinking—I—I want to speak to you."

"Well, what is it?" asked Mannering, dully.

Fleming had sunk upon his bed and was gasping as if for breath.

"I—I must do my duty. I must face it, Mannering. The Doctor is dead."

"Well, I know. What then?" asked Mannering, doggedly.

"And—and I—I don't think I shall last long."

"Nonsense!" said Mannering, brusquely.

"I don't. I'm—I've never been

"Rest! Nonsense! You don't talk like a child! You don't understand, Nina! I tell you it is gold! I cannot have made a mistake. We have been cast ashore on an Eldorado! Mr. Mannering, Fleming, you will share it with me! Indeed, it really belongs to you, Mannering, for but for you we should never have reached the island alive. Gold! Gold in practically unlimited quantities! Think of it! Nina, I—I am thirsty. I have been in the sun—water—water!"

He was gasping for breath, his face was livid and his features twitching.

Mannering ran out of the hut and brought some water, and a draught somewhat restored the old man.

"Go, now," said Nina in a low voice. "I will get him to lie down and sleep. He will be better in the morning."

She extended her hand to Mannering, and, as he took it, she murmured:

"Good night—and thank you!"

"That's all right, Miss Nina," he said, in true Englishman's fashion.

"Do you think there is anything in the Doctor's discovery?" asked Fleming, hesitatingly, as he and Mannering walked towards their hut.

Mannering shrugged his broad shoulders.

"I don't know. There may be. Gold is found in all sorts of places. But it would have been more to the point if the Doctor had discovered a banana tree, a boot tree or a coat tree. What is the use of gold to us? You can't make even a decent crock out of it.

Fleming coughed violently.

"That is true. Mannering, what a lesson to some of us who spend our lives amassing useless wealth! I wish that some of our millionaires could be here to learn that lesson!"

His pious reflection was broken by the cough which shook him from top to toe.

"Turn in and get some sleep," said Mannering.

"And you? You, too, will get some sleep to-night, Mannering?"

"Yes; oh, yes! But I'll look round first."

Fleming entered their hut and dropped into the rough bed, exhausted by the physical and mental strain; but Mannering, as soon as he had assured himself that Fleming was asleep, went up to the Vernons' hut and, revolver in hand, dropped down outside the door.

Though he had firmly resolved that he would not sleep, he must have fallen into a semi-dozze, for he was startled, as one is startled out of sleep, by a cry in Nina's voice.

"Mr. Mannering—my father!"

He was on his feet in a moment and followed her into the hut.

But he could do nothing. The Doctor was dead. The excitement of his discovery, on the top of the fever, had proved fatal. The girl stood beside the lifeless form, her eyes dry, all her tears shut up in her bereaved heart. Mannering found himself bereft of speech, a dumb dog. With scarcely a glance at her, he went in search of Fleming.

He met him coming up from the beach, his frail figure bent, his arms hanging limply at his sides, almost every step punctuated by a cough.

"And—and I—I don't think I shall last long."

"Nonsense!" said Mannering, brusquely.

"I don't. I'm—I've never been strong, and this place, beautiful as it is, seems to—to sap all my remaining strength. Mannering, if—if I go, you two, you and Nina, will be alone!"

He paused and fought for breath, holding his weak chest, as if he would fain hold the strength in it.

"Well?" said Mannering.

Fleming looked at him with poignant anguish.

"Alone! You and she! Mannering, for her sake, for yours, you must be—Can you not guess? Oh, help me, Mannering! You must be married!"

Mannering stared at him, at first vaguely, then with an intense anxiety and gravity.

"Married!" broke from his parched lips.

"Yes, married!" breathed Fleming.

CHAPTER III.

Mannering sank on to the upturned box which served as a seat and stared over Fleming's head.

"You—you had never thought of it—never thought of the situation in which she would be placed if I were to die and you and she were left alone?" said Fleming, huskily.

Mannering shook his head. "No. You will think me selfish, inconsiderate, but—"

"No, no!" Fleming broke in eagerly. "You have had so much to think of, Mannering. The wonder is that you have not broken down under the long, the terrible strain. But I—well, the responsibility has not rested on my weak shoulders, and I have had time to think, and I"—modestly—"am a clergyman; it was my duty to think of you and for you both. It has been in my mind ceaselessly, ever since I began to fear that the Doctor might die, and I knew that I should."

"You will pull round," muttered Mannering, stubbornly; but Fleming shook his head.

"Don't let us waste time arguing it," he said, quietly. "My time is short—I feel it. And think how she will be placed, that helpless girl, Mannering! Let us consider it gravely."

"A vessel might sight the signal; the beacon, any moment," put in Mannering under his breath.

"If it did so before I died all would be well; but it might not. And if one came afterwards, after I am gone, and found you two here, and took you off, what would be her position? You, a man of the world, know only too well, Mannering. She—oh, poor girl, poor girl!—would be compromised in the eyes of the world always so ready to be suspicious and censorious, always so merciless and pitiless to the woman in her position."

"I know," muttered Mannering.

"But if you were married all would be well. No one, not the most malignant or heartless, could cast a stone. You will not hesitate, Mannering? Why should you? She is young and beautiful and good—the sweetest, noblest girl!"

Mannering sprang up, then sank down again.

"She is!" he said, doggedly. "But what about me? You know nothing about me. You propose that this young and beautiful girl with all her sweetness and nobility should marry a man of whose past you know nothing. I am quite poor. I may be, probably am, worthless, a cumberer of the earth, a waste—"

about me. You propose that this young and beautiful girl with all her sweetness and nobility should marry a man of whose past you know nothing. I am quite poor. I may be, probably am, worthless, a cumberer of the earth, a waste—"

Fleming's blue eyes, set dark hollows, rested on it tentily.

"That we will go to form to please you and from—from scandal and it; but that I—I do not take advantage of it. I be a bad lot, but I'm not to snare a young girl. I that she understands the riage is to be one in only. She—she will Make her. Mind!"

A faint color flushed death-like face.

"I will tell her," he said voice. "Mannering, you ing nobly—"

She made a gesture of assent, and he went on in earnest tones, broken by fits of coughing and struggling for the painful breath:

"When I am gone you will be

She raised her eyes for a moment to his saint-like face, then dropped them to her hands again.

"It may be that you are fated to remain here for the rest of your lives—"

Her hands shook and her lips quivered at the dreadful suggestion.

"Or God may will that a passing vessel, one drifting out of her course, may see the signal on the cliff and come to your rescue."

He fought for breath, and she cast a look of pity and tender sympathy at him.

"In that case they will find you here with—Mannering—will take you back to England and tell the story of your—your solitary com-

She raised her eyes, a look of comprehension, of a woman's apprehension in them.

"Ah, you understand!" he gasped.
"The world would say—You know what it would say. Forgive me!
You will forgive me for speaking so plainly. Alas! there is no help for it; I must speak plainly!"

"I understand," she said in a low voice.

"If—if you were man and wife—"
he went on.

She looked at him with a vague doubt on her face.

"But we are not," she said.

"But there is no reason why you should not be," he said, slowly, and yet with a throbbing heart. "Indeed, Mr. Mannering has sent me to ask you—"

Her hand clutched at the skirt, but she said nothing.

"To ask you to—marry him."

"To marry him!" Her lips formed the words but no sound came; but Fleming answered, as if he had heard her mute exclamation.

"Yes. He sees the necessity of defending you against the suspicion, the evil suspicion and calumny of the world—Wait, dear Miss Nina;
do not speak until I have told you
all. And I will conceal, keep back, nothing; for it is right that you should know the whole. It was I who pointed out to him how gravely instinct was a right, a noble one.

He is a gentleman, you know," he wound up, simply.

"Yes, he was right—I suppose,"
she admitted, but with the faintest qualification.

"And you will decide?" said Fleming.

She wrung her hands. "Oh, I cannot!" she answered. "Give me—give me a little time to think—only 'an hour or two. I have never thought —it is so sudden, so unexpected. I feel as if it were not real—as if it were a dream—a nightmare."

Fleming rose and laid his hand on her trembling ones.

"Do you think I do not know what you are suffering?" he said in a low voice. "Ah, believe me, I do! Yes; take one hour. I will come back to you."

As he crept out of the hut Mannering, who was still standing gazing at the sea, heard him, but would not turn his head.

"Well!" he said, hoarsely, his face still averted. Fleming took his arm and leaned on it.

"I have spoken to her. She is naturally much distressed—"

"I should think so!" commented Mannering, grimly.

"—But she is considering it. Poor girl, she saw, with the quickness of her sex, the necessity for the step.
But I think she would have been better pleased, less distressed, if you had gone to her."

"Why?" demanded Mannering, shortly.

Fleming shook his head. "I do not know. She seemed to think that you were sacrificing yourself—at any rate as much as she was herself."

"Good Lord!" ejaculated Mannering.
He drew his hand across his brow impatiently. "See here, Fleming, though I can see your side of the case—the gravity of the situation for her—I've still a feeling that this —this marriage must be averted.
I've been thinking, and I've got a proposal. The weather is still fine.
I could knock a raft together, and she and you could venture to sea on it. You could get out on the tide and might make one of the larger islands of the group—an inhabited
one. What do you say?"

"How long would it take to make the raft?" asked Fleming.

"A couple of days. I could rig up a sail. It is a chance. Will you con-

It was I who pointed out to him how gravely you would suffer, how terribly your future would be imperilled—nay, wrecked—if—if you two were discovered here alone and were not married. That he should not have thought of it is a proof of his purity, high mindedness. But I am a clergy- man, and it is my duty—"

"Oh, I cannot, cannot!" broke from her lips, which were white though the scarlet burnt in her cheeks.

"My dear, you must!" he said with gentle firmness.

"To marry me—out of pity!" she said, inaudibly, her eyes full of shame and womanly protest.

"No, no!" he panted, his hand pressing against his hollow chest. "You do not know him or you would not say that—put it that way. It is true he pities you—what man with a spark of manliness could do otherwise, my poor child?—but he sees, with me, that it is the right, the only course to pursue. Ah, no, no; you must not think that he regards you as an object of pity—that he takes a superior, a condescending view of his responsibility. On the contrary—oh, if you had heard him speak of his unworthiness, of his inferiority, of his presumption, in offering marriage to you, you would understand how he feels towards you!"

Nina, her protest uttered, sat silent, her hands tightly clenched, her eyes fixed on the ground.

"You are thinking, reflecting?" said Fleming, quietly. "I would that I could give you time—a week, a month—to consider; but there is no time; there may not be many hours. My child, his voice grew solemn and tender, "I have considered prayerfully, and I take upon myself the great responsibility of advising you—if I dared say so, of exhorting you. Your future welfare is dear to me; I must, I must, guard it for you! There is no way of rendering that future, if you are restored to the world, safe and possible, than by marrying Mr. Manner- ing."

There was a pause; then she looked at him—a look which Fleming would have remembered if he had lived to be a hundred.

"If—if a vessel were to come—if we were to be rescued, I—I should be his wife, bound to him and he to me—a marriage without love! You, a clergyman, bid n—"

The color had left her face and she was now deathly pale.

Fleming met her eyes unflinchingly. "There is still something to tell you," he said. "I bear a message from Mr. Manner- ing. He bids me say that the marriage shall be one in name—form only, that you will be as free as you are now; that you will be his wife in name only. Ah, do you understand? You do not doubt his word, his promise?"

Her eyes left his face and wandering to the open doorway. He knew, by the writhing of the white lips, the torture she was undergoing. The silence was so intense as to be an actual burden and pain. It was he who broke it.

"You decide?" he said, huskily. "Why did he—send you? Why did he not come himself?" she asked almost inaudibly.

"Can you not understand and appreciate his feeling? He was desirous that you should be free; to discuss it with me. He would not be the one to bias, persuade, you. His

"A couple of days. I could rig up a sail. It is a chance. Will you consent?"

"Yes," gasped Fleming, calmly. "The risk is terrible—for her; there is none for me. Death in any shape I do not fear, thank God!" he added, devoutly. "But for her—"

"She may prefer the risk, death itself, to—to your plan," said Manner- ing, brusquely. "She shall decide I'll ask her."

He strode away before Fleming could stay him, and, without pausing, as if he were afraid to hesitate, reached Nina's hut.

CHAPTER IV.

She heard the knock.

"So soon!" she said to herself with a start; for she thought the hour had passed and that it was Fleming returned for her answer, the decision which she had not yet arrived at. If she had been given a week, a month, would she have been able to decide?

She sprang to her feet as Manner- ing entered, then sank down again, her eyes fixed on his face with, as it seemed to him, physical fear; and at the thought he set his teeth and frowned; that a woman should be inspired by fear at the sight of him.

"I have just left Mr. Fleming," he said, and his voice, by reason of the

HOW TO PRESERVE YOUTH AND BEAUTY.

One great secret of youth and beauty for the young woman or the mother is the proper understanding of her womanly system and well-being. Every woman, young or old, should know herself and her physical make up. A good way to arrive at this knowledge is to get a good doctor book, such for instance, as "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," by R. V. Pierce, M. D., which can readily be procured by sending thirty-one cents for cloth-bound copy, addressing Dr. Pierce, at Buffalo, N. Y.

The womanly system is a delicate machine which can only be compared to the intricate mechanism of a beautiful watch which will keep in good running order only with good care and the proper oiling at the right time, so that the delicate mechanism may not be worn out. Very many times young women get old or run down before their time through ignorance and the improper handling of this human mechanism. Mental depression, a confused head, headache, or hot flashes and many symptoms of derangement of the womanly system can be avoided by a proper understanding of what to do, in those trying times that come to all women.

MRS. WILLIAMS.

MRS. G. H. WILLIAMS, of Lynnhaven, Va., wrote: "It is six years since my health gave way. I had female trouble and all the doctors (I employed three) said I would die. I was not able to do my work, had to hire someone all the time. Finally, I read in the papers about Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and decided to try it. I had not taken but one bottle until I found it had done me good. I took, in all, five bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and two of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and now I am able to do all my housework, and have gained fourteen pounds. I advise all women who suffer from female trouble to try your 'Favorite Prescription.' It's the only medicine on earth."

Talk of smashing the party planks, used in platform building before an election. Mr. Borden has been demolishing his handiwork, and there is nothing now left of his Halifax platform. Made for elections only. Never meant for use.

L'Examenet of Quebec, the organ of Postmaster-General Pelletier, says if the French-Canadian members of the Borden Government do not resign on the Manitoba boundary and school question they have good reasons for doing so. Most assuredly; they have seven thousand reasons a year.

When Mr. Borden can follow the example set him by the British Liberal party and appoint a commission of men of politics other than his own to exercise a nation-wide patronage, he will prove that he has not only good intentions, but that he is stronger than the element in his party that is doing its best to stupefy him and it.

An Edmonton man has sold for $850,000, 145 acres of land in that city he bought for $1,450 in 1898. The men who do business and live in Edmonton will for untold generations have to pay over $50,000 a year as interest on that one man's share of the unearned increment. No wonder Edmonton has decided in favor of the taxation of land values rather than improvements.

Pepys as an Advertiser.

Pepys as a diarist we all know, but Pepys as an advertiser is unfamiliar. An advertisement from the London Post Boy of May 7, 1700, reproduced in "Notes and Queries," gives a list of articles stolen from his residence near Leicester square and offers a reward of 5 guineas for their recovery. It is interesting to note the changes in spelling wrought by a couple of centuries—"puortmantle trunk," "broadcloth coat," "black-silk wastcoat" and "two silk handkerchiefs, red and blew." There were also "four laced neck-clothes." What were they—collars in an early stage of evolution?—London Chronicle.

THE TAX REFORM AGITATION.

The cause of tax reform makes progress in Ontario. Sir James Whitney is a hard nut to crack, but there are indications of fracture on his outer shell. In one respect at least Saturday's deputation was most effective. It dispelled the Premier's idea that the tax reform agitation is "engineered" and public opinion on the question manufactured. A little over a month ago, speaking to a labor deputation, he declared that the demand for local option in taxation was all "a false cry," and that what public opinion there was on the question had been manufactured by a few newspaper men.

Sir James had his answer on Saturday. He heard from Mayor Hopewell, of Ottawa and Controllers Church and Hocken of Toronto, who, as spokesmen for the municipal section of the deputation, officially represented cities and towns containing over 650,000 people, or about a fourth of the total population of Ontario. He heard most convincing arguments also from Messrs. James Simpson, of Toronto, and Guerrero of Hamilton, representing organized labor, and from Mr. Julian Sale, speaking as a business man. They all expressed the belief that a larger part of the municipal taxation of Ontario should be levied on the unearned increase in the value of land than on improvements, and urged favorable consideration for the tax reform measures standing in the names of Mr. Rowell and Mr. Ellis.

POWER OF MUSIC.

A Wordless Conversation That Made Two Strangers Brothers.

An instance of music forming a base of conversation between strangers each ignorant of the other's language is given by John S. Nelhardt in "The River and I." While on the Missouri in a canoe with some companions they came to a place where the Great Northern railroad touches the river for the last time for 500 miles. Here they saw two Italian hands whiling away their Sunday with fishing rods.

"I went ashore, hoping to buy some fish. Neither of the two could speak English, and Italian sounds to me merely like an unintelligible singing. However, they gave me to understand that the fish were not for sale, and my proffered coin had no persuasive powers.

"Still wanting those fish I lingered, carelessly whistling the while a strain from an opera I had once heard. For some reason or other that strain had been in my head all day. I got up in the morning with it; I had whistled it during the fight with the head wind. The Kid called it 'that dago tune.' I think it was something from 'Il Trovatore.'

"Suddenly one of the little Italians dropped his rod, stood up to his full height, lifted his arms very much after the fashion of an orchestra leader and joined in with me.

"I stopped—because I saw that he could whistle. He carried it on with much expression to the last thin note with all the ache of the world in it. And then he grinned at me.

"Verdi! he said sweetly.

"I applauded, whereat the little Italian produced a bag of tobacco. We sat down on the rocks and smoked together, holding a wordless but perfectly intelligible conversation of pleasant grins.

"That night we had fish for supper. I got them for a song, or, rather, for a whistle. One immortal strain from Verdi poorly whistled in a wilderness had made an Italian and a Dutchman brothers."

THE LOST SPECTACLES.

What Happened When the Old Gentleman Tried to Find Them.

A man from "up state" who was in New York city on business was taken by a nephew whom he was visiting to dine at a Broadway restaurant the evening of his arrival. The next day he said to the younger man:

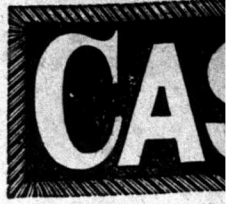

"Where is that restaurant we dined at last night? I left my gold spectacles there, I'm pretty sure. I've got another pair with me, but I don't want to lose the others."

"I'll stop in and get them for you on my way down town," replied the nephew.

He went to the restaurant, explained the circumstances and received a pair of gold rimmed spectacles that had been left on a table the previous evening. On his return home in the afternoon he handed them to his uncle.

"Where in thunder did you get those?" inquired the elder man. "I was going down Broadway today and recognized the place we dined at—at least I thought I did. Anyway I went in and asked if I left my spectacles

"Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine raised me from the grave and I have much confidence in it. I can never say enough for your grand medicines. If anyone had offered me $100.00 for the second bottle of Nervine that I used I would have said 'no indeed.'"

Lincoln county holds the record with thirty-nine Governmental appointments, and Mr. Lancaster, the member, says it is not one-tenth of what he has in view. The odds are on Lincoln for the spoils pennant.

Hamilton Times.

Premier Borden repudiated Hon. Mr. Crothers' promise made during the election campaign, that the Conservatives, if returned to power, would see that every man who lost money by the collapse of the Farmers Bank would be recouped.

Edmonton Bulletin.

Mr. Borden says he is getting weary of criticism. Doubtless. Those who are set to grind a nation for the profit of a class usually hear the voice of protest oftener than they would wish. Lets cheer him up however. The worst is yet to come.

Regina Leader.

The first constituency to have an opportunity of expressing its opinion of the Borden Government has spoken, and that only five months after the Conservatives took office. South Renfrew's verdict simply shows which way the wind is blowing already. And the gale is coming.

Kingston Standard.

We thought the Manitoba school question had been settled for all time, but Mr. Bourassa, it seems, is trying to force Mr. Borden to take up this matter once more in connection with the Manitoba boundary award. The idea is to have separate schools in the new territory that is to form part of Manitoba.

Montreal Herald.

It would seem as if the Province of Ontario has little cause to thank its many friends at Ottawa for their good intentions so far as the boundary bill is concerned. The Province has been looking forward with great eagerness to the time when out of the unallotted territory in the north it would be given a port on Hudson Bay. But it has been decided that the only two ports on that historic water, Fort Churchill and Port Nelson, are to go to Manitoba.

MOROCCO CITY.

Magnificent In Its Site and In Its Historic Ruins.

Morocco city, the capital of the southern half of the Moroccan kingdom, is a far more interesting city than Fez. Architecturally its monuments, including the famous Kutubia tower, the counterpart of the Giralda in Seville; the famous mosque of Muley Abdallah and a hundred other ruined or semi-ruined edifices surviving from the days when the city had 700,000 inhabitants and was one of the great capitals of Islam, are the most considerable and magnificent in Morocco. Equally beautiful is the site of this city in the upper valley of the Tenezift river, surrounded in a half circle by the great wall of the grand Atlas mountains, whose snowclad peaks are seen beyond a foreground of large farms and fertile fields.

A city far less given over to war, with a population less ferocious, less fanatical than that of Fez or Mekinez, Morocco city has been much more frequently visited by Europeans than its northern rivals. Geographically Morocco city is the real gateway to the Sahara. By the Glawi pass one road climbs over the Atlas mountains to Taflet, and the caravan route continues to Timbuktu. A second road descends to the Draa, crossing the Atlas chain, while a third leads to Tarudant and the Sus country. Close communication with the south has left its mark upon the people, who are darker and show more patently the infusion of African blood than the Berbers and Arabs of the north.—London Standard.

Queen Ants.

The queen ant has apparently not had justice done to her by naturalists. Dr. W. M. Wheeler's view is that by comparison with the queen bee the queen ant is by far the more admirable creature. In many important respects they are diametrically opposite. The queen bee is, it is pointed out, a degenerate creature, unable to nourish either herself or her young, to visit flowers, to build combs or to store them with honey. With the queen ant quite the reverse is the case. She is held to be a perfect exemplar and embodiment of her species, and the worker ants suffer from incomplete and retarded development. The queen ant is a very industrious and intelligent worker. She forms an exceedingly interesting subject for study.

NAVAL NICKNAMES.

Old as the Hills, Used in All Countries and Never Alter.

In the American and English navies, as well as in the merchant marines, are found nicknames that have been in use since before men dreamed that there was land on the other side of the western ocean. Tradition, most inflexible of all rules, governs them, and they never alter, whether the ship clears from the Golden Gate or from London docks. Some of the nicknames are of obvious origin; others seem to gain force by their apparent lack of reason.

For instance, why should all men named Wright be called "Shiner?" Clark is invariably "Nobby." Green is "Jimmy," and a White is a "Knocker." "Spud" Murphy explains itself, as does "Dusty" Miller. "Lofty" and "Shorty" do not need to present cards to their mates when they sign on, and it is not worth while for the brunette sailor to resent it when a friendly chap calls him as "Nigger." He can't whip the entire crew, one after

The rigid forms of the quarterdeck do not hold during the watch below, and the captain is the "Skipper," and the first lieutenant is familiarly "Jimmy the One." On fighting ships the gunnery lieutenant is "Gunnery Jack," or, more briefly, "Guns," the torpedo lieutenant "Torpedo Jack" or "Sparks" and the navigating officer "The Navy."

Even a landlubber would know that "Tommy Pipes" was the boatswain, "Chips" the carpenter, "Jimmy Bungs" the cooper and "Sails" the sailmaker. —New York Tribune.

MUSIC RUSKIN HATED.

Some Wagner Compositions Filled Him With Blind Fury.

It is of course well known that when the great litterateur and philosopher, Ruskin, disliked any one or anything he did not hesitate to say so in the most forcible language the occasion might require. It is doubtful, however, if any denunciation Ruskin ever penned or uttered equaled his outburst over some of Wagner's music, which, according to Mr. E. T. Cook in "The Life of Ruskin," filled him with blind fury. Thus to Mrs. Burne-Jones:

"Of all the bete, clumsy, blundering, boggling, baboon blooded stuff I ever saw on a human stage that thing last night ('The Meistersinger') beat, as far as the story and the acting went, and of all the affected, sapless, soulless, beginningless, endless, topless, bottomless, topsyturviest, tuneless, scrannel pipiest, tongs and boniest doggerel of sounds I ever endured the deadliness of, that eternity of nothing was the deadiest, as far as the sound went. *** As for the 'Lied,' I never made out where it began or where it ended, except by the fellow's coming off the horse block."

What an amazing prodigy, by the way, Ruskin was! He recited the One Hundred and Nineteenth Psalm before he was three, at seven he had written a work entitled "Harry and Lucy Concluded. Printed and Composed by a Little Boy and Also Drawn," at eight he had turned Scott's "Monastery" into 400 lines of verse, and at eleven he wrote 2,000 lines called the "Isteriad," describing a tour in the lakes.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Wood Pile Philosopher.

Mr. Erastus Johnson, the only colored man in Wobrook-in-the-Hills, has thought out many of the secrets of easing the toll that he knows best and is ever ready to impart them to others.

"When they comes to me fer advice," he said to one of the campers, "I alwus tell 'em it depends on what their perffession is. If they've arrived at the dignity o' sawin' wood I alwus tell 'em to saw the biggest fust. If they asks why, an' they mostly does, I say, 'So's you'll only have the little sticks to saw when you gets tuckered out.'

"An' I tell ye now," concluded Erastus graciously, quite as if the camper had asked for "pointers" on a back yard job, "it's jes' the same with pillin'. Put the big sticks to the bottom. It's mighty billous exercise a liftin' of 'em to the top."—Youth's Companion.

Do Elephants Lie Down?

A question often raised in regard to the African elephant is whether these animals ever rest or not. At first blush it would appear that there could only be one answer to the question. So huge an animal must expend a terrific amount of energy, and therefore, as one might reasonably infer, must need more time than smaller animals for rest and re-invigoration. Nevertheless, many travelers and some naturalists have asserted that the African elephant in its native state never sleeps, or, at least, never lies down. The correspondent who has sent us photographs direct from Malek on the White Nile says, in the communication that accompanies them, that the pictures represent "A herd of female elephants photographed in the bush near Malek, in the Mogalia Province of the Anglo-Egyptian Soudan. It has been maintained that the African elephant never lies down to rest. Several may be seen thus sleeping."—Country Life.

Cheap Tea is Dear Tea

SO declared the mother of a small family not long ago—

—And proved the statement true by simply relating her tea experience.

"I used a 30c. Tea for years," she said. "One day the Grocer asked me to try a 40c. package of Red Rose—he told me it was better Tea. I found it better Tea, and—before I had quite finished the first package I thought it made more Tea. The second pound I used with care——And found out that less Tea in the Pot made a richer, finer-flavored Tea, if you know what I mean."

We know exactly what this lady meant——40c. Red Rose Tea is a richer, stronger Tea, more delicately flavored.

The 30c. variety makes about 150 cups—

—Whereas the 40c. Red Rose Tea makes about 200 cups.

So—You might as well have better tea for the same cost in the long run.

There are several grades of Red Rose Tea selling at different prices, but the 40c. grade seems to please best. It is not only fine Quality but goes farther.

DEADLOCK IS REACHED

Asquith Makes Statement in Commons on Coal Strike.

British Prime Minister Tells Parliament How He Approached the Contending Parties and Opposition Leader Approves His Action—Strike Spreads and Factory After Factory Is Forced to Close Down.

London, March 5.—It is quite impossible to hazard a guess as to the probable duration of the coal strike. James Keir Hardie, the Independent Labor member of Parliament, expresses the opinion that the strike will end in a triumph for the miners within ten days, but that the men must be prepared to remain on strike for six weeks.

Premier Asquith's statement in the House of Commons yesterday gave no new information and was only interesting as showing that the Government had not lost hope of bringing the disputants together.

A report was received from Derbyshire of a movement on the part of the miners in the midland counties to bring about an amicable arrangement with the mine owners. Such a partial settlement is hardly probable, but if it really came about, it would do much towards effecting a general settlement.

The coal strike is now affecting every class of the community. Tens of thousands of workers have been dismissed, and the railway service is dislocated and disorganized. Like creeping paralysis, the stoppage of the coal supply is threatening the whole life of the nation. The miners are making holiday. They are, as they put it, "having their fling" while the nation suffers, the poor go cold and hungry, and their fellow-workers are turned into the streets.

Factory after factory is closing down all over the United Kingdom as a result of the national coal strike, and those responsible for the trouble are simply marking time for the present, although it is expected that negotiations will soon be resumed.

Besides the miners, considerably over a million of whom have ceased work, it is now estimated that there are upwards of 200,000 workers in other industries idle owing to the strike, and this number is being added to hourly.

The crews of coal-carrying vessels lying in the coaling ports are now being discharged, as the ships are unable to get cargoes, and the railroad employees are suffering in a similar way because of curtailment by the various companies of their train services. One short railroad line in Yorkshire has discontinued working entirely.

Asquith's Statement.

London, March 5.—(Through Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—The House of Commons was crowded yesterday afternoon to hear Premier Asquith's important statement on the coal crisis. Mr. Asquith reviewed the whole course of negotiations between the striking coal miners and the mine owners, mentioning the fact that the Government had been closely watching from the beginning the various stages of the controversy. He paid a tribute to both sides upon the ability, the skill and the calm, cool temper with which they had presented their case.

the controversy. He paid a tribute to both sides upon the ability, the skill and the calm, cool temper with which they had presented their case.

Referring to his speech at the Foreign Office he said it was an impromptu speech and that the report of it which had been published was both correct and exhaustive. He was not in the habit, he said, of engaging in flirtations with socialism and then trying to conceal from the public the manner in which he had been employing his time.

He said that in his arguments to the miners representatives he had carefully abstained from expressing any opinion as to which side was right or wrong, but the point he put to the men was the point he was now putting to the House and to the country as a whole.

He was not adopting a contentious attitude. His object was peace. (Cheers.)

Proceeding, Mr. Asquith affirmed that the Government's acceptance of the principle of a reasonable minimum wage was subject to two conditions: First, that the wage must vary district by district; second, that it must be accompanied by safeguards protecting the employers against abuse and providing against diminution of the output, which in the long run would be disastrous to all concerned and to the industry. He pointed out that the men recognized both conditions, but declared that the federation's schedule contained the lowest possible rates beyond the range of negotiations.

Coming to the present position, he said that the negotiations had not come to a breakdown, but to a deadlock.

He wished, however, to say also that apart from this the Government was not idle. It felt strongly that the best way of fixing a reasonable minimum wage in the various districts was by agreement between the parties, and he still hoped that that might be done.

Mr. Asquith throughout spoke with extreme gravity, and the House followed every sentence intently.

Mr. Bonar Law, the Unionist leader, said that he did not dream of criticising the Government, nor did he desire to discuss the question. He assured the Premier that the Opposition would do nothing to make the task of the Government more difficult, and thanked Mr. Asquith for his clear and frank statement. (Cheers.)

London, March 5.—The suffragettes started operations again early yesterday morning. A small band of them, armed with hammers and stones, went through the Knights Bridge and Brompton road district, in the west end of London, breaking up the plate-glass windows of the big drygoods stores in that neighborhood. As usual, owing to the disturbance being unexpected, the police on duty in the district were unable to cope with the suffragettes, who were distributed over a wide area.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, March 4.—There was a good demand from the continent for Manitoba spring wheat and some sales were made, but the bids from the United Kingdom came 1 1/2d lower and figured out 1c to 1 1/4c per bushel out of line with values here. The foreign demand for spring wheat flour for March-April shipment was fair, but as millers generally are closed, sold up for this shipment, few of the orders could be accepted and buyers do not seem disposed to book for future months. The local trade is fairly active and prices firm. Millfeed is in good demand and scarce. Butter is firm, but the demand is not so keen as it was. Eggs fairly active. ## FOSTER IS CHOSEN.

He Will Represent Canada on Imperial Commission.

Ottawa, March 5.—Hon. George E. Foster, Minister of Trade and Commerce, has been recommended for appointment as the representative of Canada on a royal commission which has for its purpose the investigating and reporting upon the natural resources of each part of the Empire, the development attained and attainable and the facilities for the production, manufacture and distribution of these resources.

The commission has also for its object the investigation of trade of each part of the Empire with the others and with the outside world, the food and raw material requirements of each and the sources available. The commission will also investigate to what extent, if any, the trade between each of the different parts has been affected by existing legislation in each, either beneficially or otherwise.

This recommendation is the direct result of the Imperial Conference held last June in London. During that conference, Hon. Mr. Fisher, the Premier of Australia, had on the order paper on June 16, two resolutions urging that trade between the different parts of the Empire should be more fully developed.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier proposed on that day that something more should be brought before the conference and moved the following resolution: "That His Majesty should be approached with a view to the appointment of a royal commission representing the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, South Africa, and Newfoundland, with a view of investigating and reporting upon the natural resources of each part of the Empire represented at this conference, the development attained and attainable and the facilities for the production, manufacture and distribution; the trade of each part with the others and the outside world, the food and the raw material requirements of each and the resources thereof available. To what extent, if any, the trade between each of the divergent has been affected by existing legislation in each, either beneficially or otherwise."

DOCTOR IS CHARGED.

Toronto Physician Named in Coroner's Jury's Verdict.

Toronto, March 5.—"Esther Davidge came to her death at the Western Hospital, Toronto, on Sunday, March 3, 1912, as the result of blood-poisoning, the said blood-poisoning being caused by an illegal operation performed by Dr. B. E. Hawke of 21 Wellesley street, Toronto."

This verdict was returned at the morgue last night by a jury under Coroner Young.

Before they retired the jurors were told by the coroner that they could mention the husband of the deceased in their verdict if the evidence influenced them to do so.

An ante-mortem statement taken at the hospital on Friday night was read. Mrs. Davidge said Dr. Hawke had been chosen to perform the operation because a year previous she and her husband had read in the newspapers of his having performed an abortion on a young girl.

She stated that her husband had given her $25 which she paid Dr. Hawke.

Staff-Sergeant McKinney told of an interview he had had with Mr. Davidge in Staff Inspector Kennedy's office.

Mr. Davidge, according to the witness, said he and his wife had discussed the question of an operation. The husband had stated, however, that he did not know the operation had been performed until his wife told him about it after being taken ill. He gave as a reason for desiring it that a physician had told him that his wife would not survive the shock of another childbirth.

Sunday Shooting In Britain.

London, March 5.—(C.A.P. Cable).—The War Office has decided to allow territorials to have rifle practice on Sundays, provided the shooting as far as possible be confined to "compulsory work to attain proficiency, that the quiet of the Sabbath be not needlessly disturbed and that the men be given an opportunity of attending church. This decision was reached after conferring with the Archbishop of Canterbury, other prelates and leading nonconformists.

Husband Was Greatly Worried.

Brantford, March 5.—"The saddest case I have ever heard of," said Magistrate Livingstone in sentencing Arthur Taylor to two months' hard labor here yesterday for theft from John Drake.

Taylor was arrested in Toronto recently, having eloped with Drake's wife. He also took a sum of money belonging to her husband and left a board bill of $60. He has a wife and family in England.

Milkers and Springers.
The market for milkers and springers was steady at from $40 to $70.

Veal Calves.
There was a larger supply of calves, the prices ranging from $5 to $9.25.

Hogs.
W. J. Johnston quoted $6.65 f.o.b.; $7 fed and watered, and $7.25 weighed off cars.

Montreal Live Stock.
MONTREAL, March 4.—At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending March 2, were 2300 cattle, 120 sheep and lambs, 4100 hogs and 800 calves. The supply on the market this morning consisted of 1200 cattle, 100 sheep and lambs, 2000 hogs and 300 calves.

A feature of the trade was the weaker feeling in the market for cattle and prices were fully 25c lower than a week ago, which was due to the fact that supplies were up to their usual number on account of the snow blockades being pretty well removed, enabling drovers to make their usual shipments and get the stock into the market. Trading was extremely active.

The quality was much better than it has been lately and sales of odd choice steers weighing from 1250 to 1800 pounds, were made at $7 and full loads at $6.75, while full loads averaging from 1050 to 1100 pounds each, brought from $6.15 to $6.25 per cwt. There were a number of good to choice bulls offered, which sold at from $5.25 to $5.75 per cwt. The top price realized for choice cows was $5.50. A good many cattle and hogs were bought for shipment to Quebec and other outside points.

Another feature of the trade was the weak feeling which developed in the market for hogs and prices declined 25c to 50c per cwt., as compared with last week. Supplies were large to-day, but as packers in most cases were short of stock the demand was unusually good and an active trade was done, selected lots selling freely at $7.75 per cwt., weighed off the cars.

The trade in sheep and lambs was quiet on account of the limited supply coming forward, for which the demand is somewhat limited, as the butchers are now working on their frozen stock. The demand for calves was good, which are coming in more freely and sales were made at from $3 to $12 each, as to size and quality.

BLOOD MONEY IN PERSIA.

Curious Laws in That Country Governing the Crime of Murder.

A Persian murderer may pay blood money in lieu of his own life. The manner in which this is calculated is one of the most complicated things about Persian law. A woman is worth only half a man, and so a man cannot be executed for the murder of a mere woman. A husband whose wife had been killed by his steward was obliged first to pay half the steward's blood price to the man's relations, and thus the steward, having been reduced to the value of half a man, equal to one whole woman, was legally executed.

From this principle it follows that a man who has killed two women can be condemned to death, as equality is not infringed. If the murder of a woman be committed by several men the friends, upon whose initiative alone any proceedings can take place, can demand the death of but one of the murderers and always by paying the difference in the price of blood. On the same ground if two women murder a man the death of both can be demanded.

Evidently one could make a considerable fortune in Persia by getting one's men folk murdered by a woman apiece. Much the same plan is carried out in the case of minor injuries, with this curious addition—that the part of the body paid for is considered to be the property of the one who pays the blood money.—London Times.

CAUGHT A TARTAR.

Retort of a Witness That Broke Up a Cross Examination.

"The purpose of a cross examination in a law case," said a judge, "is to try to break down the testimony of a witness, but sometimes even the smartest lawyer catches a tartar and instead of breaking down the witness he himself is all broken up. I will never forget an answer made to me by a Hebrew witness who was the complainant in a burglary case in a county court. He charged the young gentleman whom I was defending with breaking open the door of his apartment above his tailor shop. On direct examination he testified that the alleged burglar had broken the chain on the inside of the door. I started in to cross examine with that ease of manner which characterizes every lawyer who has a good point up his sleeve. In my sweetest tones I asked:

"Now, my dear sir, you say this boy broke in your door?"

"Yes, sir."

"And you say he broke the chain that was fastened on the inside?"

"Yes, sir."

"Now will you tell me how any man on the outside of a door could possibly unfasten a chain that was on the inside?"

"Quick as a flash he blurted out: 'How should I know? Vy don't you ask him? Dat's his business. I'm a tailor. He's a thief!'"

"That cross examination came to a full stop then and there."—Brooklyn Eagle.

WANTED AN EXCHANGE.

A Curious Adventure in Which the Czar Nicholas Figured.

The Czar Nicholas was very fond of masquerade balls and one night appeared at one in the character of his Satanic majesty, with grinning face, horns and tail, and seemed to enjoy the character very much.

About 3 o'clock in the morning he went out and, throwing over him some furs, called a cab and ordered the coachman to take him to the Quai Anglais. Being very tired, he fell asleep. When he awoke he found the coachman had taken the wrong direction, for the Quai Anglais was in the most fashionable part of the city, while around him were only miserable hovels.

Nicholas began to remonstrate, but the driver, paying no heed to him, drove through a stone archway into a cemetery. Then, taking a long knife from his girdle, he opened the door of the cab and said:

"Give me your money and your furs or I will kill you."

"And do you give me your soul," cried Nicholas as he threw off his furs and disclosed his personification of the evil one.

Overcome with terror, the coachman fell senseless on the ground, while the emperor himself drove the cab back to town and afterward used more care in the selection of a coachman.

SAVED BY A SONG.
When Santley and His Party Faced Death in Mexico.

Few people are aware that on one occasion a timely song saved Sir Charles Santley's life. The famous baritone was one of a party traveling under military escort through a bandit infested region in Mexico when the guards suddenly bolted, leaving the travelers to the mercy of a band of booty hunters. These desperadoes, finding the spoil less valuable than they expected, decided to slay their captives and fare forth on another foray.

An inspiration came to Santley. Surrounded by friends and foes, he commenced an aria and sang in his own inimitable way. As the notes rippled forth on the clear mountain air the bandits' faces lighted up with pleasure, and at the finish the leader expressed his delight and asked the senior to sing again.

Santley saw his chance and seized it. He inquired if he might sing for the liberty of the little party, and a reluctant consent was given. For several hours during that never to be forgotten night he enthralled his captors with a generous program of exquisite melodies. The next day the bandits tendered payment by taking the whole party down the mountain side and setting them free. Notwithstanding later triumphs Sir Charles Santley never surpassed that one.—London Graphic.

Helpful Anyhow.

They were discussing an absentee, and not all their remarks were favorable. One, however, spoke in his defense. "Whatever his failings may be," he said, "he thinks of more little ways of being helpful than any other person I know. One day I was with him at a ferryhouse where a crowd was waiting for the boat. Suddenly he left me and walked toward a woman who was struggling with a three-year-old and a number of parcels. Our friend raised his bat, spoke to the woman, and then I saw him grapple her parcels. Soon he returned to my side, and I asked him, 'What was it?' 'Oh, nothing,' he said carelessly. 'She had too many parcels. I put a rubber band around them and bunched them into one.' I was disgusted with myself that I had not thought of that simple little expedient for helping the woman, and ever since that time I have had much respect for our friend, although I can't indorse all of his ways."—New York Press.

An Easy Medical Degree.
 Time was when medical degrees were obtained at St. Andrews without all the difficulties of today, and the story is told concerning a learned professor of old, who had advised a particular student whom he had never seen in the flesh and of whose work he knew but little, to call upon him at his house so that he might be examined for his degree. The morning was a fine one, and the learned gentleman found it impossible to resist the attractions of the links. Before setting out, however, he had left a message with one of the maidservants, and a conversation like the following ensued on the arrival of the student at the appointed time: "Are you the gentleman who was to call this morning about a degree?" asked the girl on opening the door. "I am," was the reply. "Well," said the maid, "I was to tell you that it was all right. You have passed."—Scotsman.

The Old Press Gang.

Desperate means were sometimes resorted to in order to get men for British warships. A chronicler writes that in the year 1738 "a fleet of ships being required immediately to be manned, the press gangs placed a live turkey on the top of a monument, which, drawing together a great number of idle people, they had the opportunity of selecting as many men as answered the purpose of their intended scheme." The scene so enraged a citizen that he fired a shot at the bird, "which occasioned it to fly away." But the mischief had been done.

Your Money Back if You are not Satisfied with the Medicine We Recommend.

We are so positive that our remedy will permanently relieve constipation, no matter how chronic it may be, that we offer to furnish the medicine at our expense should it fail to produce satisfactory results.

It is worse than useless to attempt to cure constipation with cathartic drugs. Laxatives or cathartics do much harm. They cause a reaction, irritate, and weaken the bowels and tend to make constipation more chronic. Besides, their use becomes a habit that is dangerous.

Constipation is caused by a weakness of the nerves and muscles of the large intestine or descending colon. To expect permanent relief you must therefore tone up and strengthen these organs and restore them to healthier activity.

We want you to try Rexall Orderlies on our recommendation. They are exceedingly pleasant to take, being eaten like candy, and are ideal for children, delicate persons, and old folks, as well as for the robust. They act directly on the nerves and muscles of the bowels. They apparently have a neutral action on other associate organs or glands. They do not purge, cause excessive looseness nor create any inconvenience whatever. They may be taken any time, day or night. They will positively relieve chronic or habitual constipation, if not of surgical variety, and the myriads of associate or dependent chronic ailments, if taken with regularity for a reasonable length of time. 12 tablets, 10 cents; 36 tablets, 25 cents; 80 tablets, 50 cents. Sold in Napanee only at our store—The Rexall Store, T. B. Wallace, Druggist.

CAUSE FOR ALARM.

Loss of Appetite or Distress After Eating, a Symptom that Should not be Disregarded.

Appetite is just a natural desire for food. Loss of appetite or stomach distress after eating indicate indigestion or dyspepsia. Over-eating is a habit very dangerous to a person's good general health.

It is not what you eat but what you digest and assimilate that does you good. Some of the strongest, heaviest and healthiest persons are moderate eaters.

There is nothing that will cause more trouble than a disordered stomach and many people daily contract serious maladies simply through disregard or buse of the stomach.

We urge all in Napanee who suffer from any stomach derangement, indigestion, or dyspepsia, whether acute or chronic, to try Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, with the distinct understanding that we will refund their money without question or formality, if after reasonable use of this medicine, they are not perfectly satisfied with the results. We recommend them to our customers every day, and have yet to hear of anyone who has not been benefited by them. We honestly believe them to be without equal. They give very prompt relief, aiding to neutralize the gastric juices, strengthen the digestive organs, to regulate the bowels, and thus to promote perfect nutrition,
and eradicate all unhealthy symptoms.

We urge you to try a 25c box of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, which gives 15 days' treatment. At the end of that time, your money will be returned to you if you are not satisfied. Of course in chronic cases length of treatment varies. For such cases, we have two larger sizes, which sell for 50c and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store,
T. B. Wallace, Druggist.

THE FLOCK MASTER.

Poorly fed sheep will not produce very good wool nor good mutton.

Do not attempt to winter more sheep than can be done without crowding.

Sheep are comfort lovers, and the man who neglects to provide them with good, dry shelter makes a costly error.

Ewes that are broad and long will make good mothers and produce vigorous offsprings. In this way lambs of a better type will be produced.

In yarding sheep don't forget a constant supply of good fresh water and rock salt is a necessity; also plenty of good fresh bedding and always a dry lair.

THE HAMPSHIRE HOG.

Breed Noted For Hardiness and Powers of Reproduction.

The Hampshire hog first attracted my attention at the international in Among other characteristics they have small heads, ears of medium length and slightly inclining forward, light jowl, broad back of nearly uniform width, slightly arched, heavy hams, active and muscular and devoid of excess of bone.

Most excellent results are accomplished by crossing this breed with the larger Poland China or Duroc.

Value of the Pure Breed.

Can any one estimate the value brought to a community by the use of a good stallion? The increased usefulness of the colts and their more ready salability are not the only gains. A good stallion improves the horse stock of the farm side, but he also improves the men. Every owner takes pride in a good horse, and a good horse is impossible without a good sire. A good sire is impossible without an appreciation on the part of mankind. Pure bred live stock is an educator and is worth its cost and keep for its influence upon the boys and girls if for no other purpose.—Kansas Farmer.

A Feeding Suggestion.

A good deal of risk would be avoided by the judicious use of a little hay or alfalfa in the cattle sheds each morning before the animals go on to the stock fields, and after they have cleaned up the best of the grain and fodder in the fields the hay, with some grain, is necessary. It is all right to rough them through, but don't be too rough.

"St. Wapniae."

A person desiring to keep in mind which members of the cabinet would succeed to the executive office may remember the name St. Wapniae.
Each letter suggests the secretary or head of department next in succession for president of the United States—for instance, state, treasury, war, attorney general, postmaster general, navy, interior, agriculture and commerce and labor.—Leslie's.

Ending His Suspense.

"The widow promised to give me her answer tomorrow. Gee, I don't see how I can sleep tonight!"

"Go to sleep and don't worry, old chap. She told me when I introduced you to her that she was going to marry you."—Houston Post.

A Fact.

"Our prison doctor the other day evolved a new aphorism."

"What was it?"

"That a felon in jail is worth two on the hand."—Baltimore American.

Avoid greatness. In a cottage there may be found more real happiness than kings or their favorites enjoy in palaces.—Horace.

TORTURED FOR THIRTY FIVE YEARS

I really could not live without "Fruit-a-tives"

FENAGHVALE, ONT. Jan. 29th. 1910.
"For thirty-five years (and I am now a man over seventy) I have been a terrible sufferer from Constipation. No matter what remedy or physicians I employed, the result was always the same—impossible to get a cure. About two years ago, I read about 'Fruit-atives' and I decided to try them.

I have used 'Fruit-a-tives' ever since.
They are the first and only medicine that suited my case. If it were not for 'Fruit-a-tives' I am satisfied that I could not live!" JAMES PROUDFOOT.

The greatest remedy in the world for all forms of Indigestion and Dyspepsia, is "Fruit-a-tives". Doctors as well as hundreds of people proclaim it.

"Fruit-a-tives" cures all stomach troubles because it makes the liver active, strengthens the kidneys, purifies the blood and keeps the stomach sweet and clean. "Fruit-a-tives" is the only remedy made of fruit juices.

Arms To Be Thrown In Sea.

New York, March 5.—Fearing to conflict with the Sullivan law governing the possession of firearms, Police Commissioner Waldo announced yesterday that the usual yearly sale of firearms and other weapons which fall into the hands of the police would be abandoned this year and instead the present collection, valued at over $8,000, would be dumped into the sea.
Arrangements have been made for a police boat to go out early Thursday morning, loaded down with 1,500 revolvers, 200 shotguns, 100 rifles, 250 blackjacks and knives of all shapes and sizes, all of which will be thrown overboard.

Breed Noted For Hardiness and Powers of Reproduction.

The Hampshire hog first attracted my attention at the international in 1904, writes an Iowa farmer in American Agriculturist. Six years' experience in breeding and feeding these hogs has convinced me that they possess many strong points of superiority over other breeds. The increasing attention they are now attracting at all the big shows and expositions of the country indicates that the Hampshire is the coming hog. They are by far more vigorous and uniformly healthy than any other breed with which I am acquainted. They are the most prolific breeders, bearing more litters and larger ones than sows of other breeds.

While Hampshires never attain the enormous size of the Poland China and other breeds, they often weigh more than 600 pounds and sometimes over 700 pounds. Certain it is that the flesh they do have is all quality, and they kill out on an average of more than 5 per cent better than other breeds and therefore bring from 10 to 25 cents per 100 pounds more with the packers. The cost of feeding them is always less than in feeding other breeds because the Hampshires are the best rustlers in the bunch and pick up quantities of just the feed that they are looking for.

I think it is unquestionably true that the better known breeds in the corn belt lack constitutional vigor. This condition is brought on by inbreeding, overfeeding and close confinement. Their vitality is low, they do not resist disease, and it is not uncommon to see a 400 pound sow with twins or triplets for a litter. As a hog possessing all the hardiness, vitality and pro-

Hampshire hogs are noted for hardiness and vitality. They are the ideal swine for general ranch use because they are symmetrical, docile, prolific, early maturing and easily fattened. They outnumbered every other variety shown at the recent Chicago exposition, and a Hampshire won the carcass championship. In size of litters this breed ranks away up, for it is quite common for a gilt to have from nine to eleven pigs and raise them all. The older sows have from nine to fifteen or more. The sows are especially good mothers, are very seldom cross or ill and generally raise a large per cent of their pigs. The Hampshire hog shown was a prize winner last fall.

efficacy of the unrestrained muscular animal of pioneer days and equalling any other breed for smooth finish, docility, early maturing and fattening qualities I claim the Hampshires as ideal.

In form, color and carriage they are the most attractive of all breeds. The most fashionable color and the one most closely identified with the name is black, with a wide white belt extending around the body, including the front legs. In some localities, however, they are bred entirely black.

The Right Hon. Edward Blake, K. C., D.L.D., second premier of Ontario and former leader of the federal liberal party, member of the British house of commons, distinguished scholar, lawyer, and statesman, died at his residence, 449 Jarvis street, Toronto, shortly before seven o'clock Friday evening of last week. Although he had been in failing health for a long period, his death, despite his old age, was entirely unexpected and tragic. A few moments before he expired he was carried from his bedroom by attendants and placed in a chair in his library, where he had spent many hours each day during his illness. While in a sitting position he collapsed and had succumbed before aid of any kind could be administered.

A mountaineer, is a handsome young actor who is well-known to the majority of patrons of the better class of attractions, having played leading roles with Walker Whiteside for six years, and for the past two seasons a popular star in romantic drama. No matter how cleverly constructed or entertaining a play may be, nor how much money may have been spent upon its scenic and costume equipment, if the play is not well cast, or in other words if the actors portraying the different parts are not particularly adapted to the roles assigned, a good performance is impossible. More especially so is this of a dramatized novel, where nearly everyone who has read the book has formed a mental portrait of the characters, fully realizing this Messrs. A. G. Delamatar and William Norris in selecting their cast for George Barr McCutcheon's 'Beverly' to be presented at the Brisco Opera House on Friday, March 15th, have exercised unusual care with the result that each of the many characters in the play bear the impression of having stepped out of the story on the stage.

Knights a Menace, He Says.

Montreal, March 5.—Branding the Knights of Columbus as the triumph of the spirit of masonry in the Catholic Church, a writer in La Croix, a Roman Catholic organ, makes an attack on that organization. The writer in La Croix sees in the Columbus a fraternity of all Catholic organizations, the most dangerous to the interests of French-Canadians. It is the triumph of Irishism and Liberalism, and should, therefore, be looked upon askance by all French-Canadians.

The writer, after pointing out that in combating Freemasonry one must combat all organizations leading up to Freemasonry, points out that it is in the mutual benevolent societies that Masonry makes its appearance. These by their initiation, their password, and their secrets, mimic Freemasonry, and should, therefore, be suppressed. Of all these organizations the most potent is the society known as Knights of Columbus.

Michigan Apple Crop Cuffers.

St. Catharines, March 5.—From statements made at the annual Fruit Institute of Niagara District Growers here yesterday afternoon, there is a possibility that the entire crop of the state of Michigan will be ruined as the result of the severe winter, the trees having been exposed to over 20 degrees of frost.

C. E. Bassett, secretary of state, for the horticultural society, made the statement, which he partly qualified by saying that if any orchards produce a yield, it will be due to use of clover clop, which hindered the fall growth of trees and buds, so that they entered the winter hard and solid.

Prof. Gussow of Ottawa declared that yellows and little peaches cannot be cured, as both are what he termed constitutional diseases.
